Having fine and frizzy hair is a lose-lose situation: Volume-building layers turn feathery, and fuzz-busting serums weigh things down. But Quackenbush offered to turn the odds in our favor with a cut and a translucent glaze. She cut off two inches and sliced a few shorter, thicker pieces underneath to keep our style from falling flat. Next, she deposited a shine-enhancing gloss that seemed to soften our hair's rough texture. At last, a stylist who wins out over Mother Nature. $90.
